

Team Rwanda 2020

Team Member skills and attributes

Successful volunteers are likely to be:

- Good team players;
- Friendly and approachable;
- Keen to learn and share knowledge with others;
- Resourceful and happy to get stuck in to get the job done;
- Confident communicating with and motivating others;
- Good at explaining information;
- Creative and good at problem solving;
- Positive and flexible in dealing with the unexpected;
- Sensitive to other cultures;
- Passionate about creating sustainable change.

Volunteers in the story telling through media team will ideally be:

- Interested in using the power of social media for a good cause;
- Experienced in using online communication platforms including Instagram, email, blogs and YouTube;
- Good at interpreting information or data and turning it into visual content that communicates a clear message;
- Able to work creatively as a team, generating ideas and developing them into action;
- Able to use basic IT skills and including basic photo and video editing software.

Volunteers in the data gathering team will ideally be:

- Interested in community research and gathering data with a good knowledge of relevant research skills;
- Curious to find out information and good at listening and paying attention to detail;
- Able to process information gathered and communicate the results for different audiences on various online platforms;
- Able to use basic IT skills including basic research software or programmes.

Volunteers in the business development team will ideally be:

- Passionate about social enterprise with some knowledge of business planning;
- Interested in, with some basic knowledge of, research skills relevant to business and enterprise or materials and products;
- Creative in solving problems and coming up with solutions;
- Able to use basic administration and IT skills.